Hiker finds 32-year old airplane wreck, including remains of former local men

The recently discovered wreckage of an airplane reported missing 32 years ago has shed light on the deaths of three former West Sacramento residents and a Sacramento friend who took them on an airplane trip.

The plane, which took off during the evening of July 19, 1962, was piloted by Alvie Taylor, 26, who was a mechanic at the now-defunct Capitol Sky Park in Sacramento. The reported destination was Fresno, so Taylor and his passengers could attend a Billy Graham revival.

But the plane, a rented Piper Commanche, never made it.

And until Aug. 7 of this year, no one knew exactly where it ended up.

But on that day earlier this month, an off-duty trailworker at Yosemite National Park happened onto the wreckage near the rim of Stubble Field Canyon in Yosemite.

The wreckage has been confirmed to be the plane which carried passengers Nick Lokteff, 17; Ben Amegin, 27; and Paul Sokol, 23; all of the East Yolo area (now West Sacramento), on their doomed flight.

Investigators say it will be difficult to determine the cause of the airplane's crash because so much time has elapsed since the accident.

Hundreds expected for music fest

By Steve Marschke

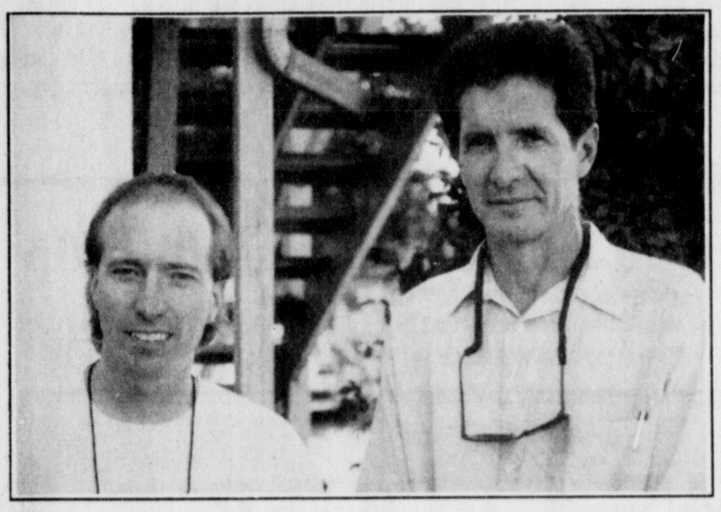
Is the second time the charm?

Organizers of the second annual Rivebank Music Festival certainly hope so.

By including a more prominent headline act, more local acts, and the goodwill generated from last year's music festival, the West Sacramento Parks and Community Services Department hopes to at least break even at the celebration which begins at 5 p.m. on Sunday on the lawn of the First Nationwide Bank complex on Stillwater Road in West Sacramento.

"I hear two criticisms from last year, and I think we addressed them," said promoter Rudy Martinez, a former West Sacramento resident himself. "They said that we needed a more famous headliner and more local acts. I think we've done that."

Headlining will be Richard Thompson, a British folk rocker who will be playing acoustic guitar with a standup bass backup. Martinez says that signing Thompson for the event was a real coup which took six months of lobbying, and describe Thompson's music as "poignant love songs and stunning guitar work."



PHIL LONEY and RUDY MARTINEZ, two of the key organizers of this year's Riverbank Music Festival fundraising event.

Among the other acts featured at the festival will be "Odisea," a West Sacramento band which features a fusion of Latin and American sounds. Former local Mick Martin (who used to serve as the Sacramento Union's music critic) will return this year with his harmonica, and "Papa's Culture" and the "Michael Gregory Band will also make an appearance.

Last year's version of the event failed to make money, but Martinez said that a better advertising campaign, lower expenses, and the goodwill generated from last year should bring more people this time around.

"I hope it breaks even, and in future years makes a lot of money," said Martinez. "It's a long-term commitment."

Phil Loney, a parks department employee and fellow organizer, said that he would be elated if the festival generated $3,000 to $5,000 for the department's programs this year.

And the pair also stressed that the festival provides an opportunity to show off West Sacramento to people from outside the area. The site is located in one of the city's newest commercial developments, near the Reed Ave. exit and I-80.

"There were a lot of people last year who didn't believe they had a place like this in West Sacramento," commented Martinez.

Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children if purchased in advance through any Bass outlet, at The Beat in Sacramento, or at Big R Clothing at Harbor and West Capitol in West Sacramento.

Prices will be $12 for adults and $6 for children the day of the show.

Port turns biggest profit since 1993; credits Japan rice deal

By Steve Marschke

The Port of Sacramento has reported its highest tonnage and profit levels in a decade, for its fiscal year ending in June.

The Port made a $1,362,144 profit for fiscal year 1993, up from a $184,611 profit the previous year.

"A preponderance of that increase was in rice exports," said Assistant Director John Sulpizio. The port is located within the City of West Sacramento, with a main entrance off of Industrial Blvd. near Harbor Blvd.

Sulpizio said that total tonnage during the past year had increased 242,304 tons to 1,368,431 tons from the previous year.

214,751 of those tons were in rice, which was stimulated by emergency imports by Japan, which had suffered a bad harvest due to weather problems. Port officials are excited that the current round of GATT talks on international trade call for a permanent opening of the huge Japanese market to rice imports, beginning with a four percent import level for 1995.

Sulpizio said he recently had an opportunity to ask Congressman Robert Matsui, a Democrat from Sacramento, whether this rice export opportunity was a sure thing.

"He said that you can't count on it until it's a done deal," Sulpizio related.

The profit at the port, which is a taxpayer-owned facility, will go into reserves and much of it will be used to pay for a variety of improvements at the aging facility.

Port will use its new reserves for improvements, and still faces a multi-million dollar battle with PG&E over who will pay to relocate the utility's gas lines.

The port is still battling PG&E in court over an issue which has stalled a deepening of the channel connecting the it to the Bay Area. At issue are some of the utilities' gas lines, which may have to be relocated at a cost of about $9.5 million by the port in order to continue dredging the channel to a depth of 35 feet -- five feet deeper than it currently measures.

The new depth is intended to allow the Port of Sacramento to service larger ships and more varied cargoes.

About 8.5 miles of the 47-mile channel have already been deepened.

Sulpizio said the PG&E lines will probably need to be buried and "capped" with a roof of concrete, so that an "extreme event" such as a ship dropping its anchor over them will not cause damage to the 26-inch gas lines.

He added that a court resolution to the problem is expected within about two months.

Two suspects in Aug. 8 shooting turn themselves in at San Ysidro

■ One person who may have been present during the shooting of a restaurant worker is still at large

By Steve Marschke

Two suspects in an Aug. 8 murder turned themselves in to West Sacramento police officers at a Mexican border crossing in San Ysidro, California, on Saturday.

Jose Anderes Llanes Campos, 24, and Jose Osbaldo Llanes Campos, 22, had made arrangements to turn themselves in to three West Sacramento police officers upon re-entering the United States from Mexico at the border crossing.

"We had been in contact with one of their wives (in the United States)," said Detective Tom Bowler, who was one of those present in San Ysidro. "The wife suggested they contact us, which they did. They arranged to meet us at the border."

A third person believed to be present at the shooting, Hernan Esquivel, is still wanted for questioning. West Sacramento police issue a statement Tuesday that he was a possible material witness to the shooting.

Detective Bowler said that police have not discovered a motive for the possible murder of Juan Manuel Trujillo, whose body was discovered Aug. 8 at a Maple St. residence in West Sacramento. Trujillo's apparent cause of death was a shotgun blast to the head.

Trujillo was a worker at a fast food restaurant in Old Sacramento. Bowler said that no drugs or stolen property were found at the scene, nor anything else that might have suggested a motive for a killing.

The Campos brothers allegedly fled to Mexico following the death of Trujillo.

According to arrest reports, the elder Campos has admitted to the shooting and his younger brother agreed with that story. But Detective Bowler declined comment on which brother is believed to have performed the shooting.

The Campos brothers were scheduled for a court appearance this week.

Police asked that anyone with information on the shooting contact Sgt. Rick Mayoral or Det. Bowler at 372-2461 or 373-5870.

14 arrested in sweep of suspected 'meth' ring

Six West Sacramento homes were raided on drug search warrants, resulting in the arrests of 14 people on Aug. 23.

The investigation was instigated by the Yolo County Narcotics Enforcement Team (YONET), an inter-jurisdictional law enforcement team spanning the county.

After developing evidence that the properties were being used in a methamphetamine manufacturing, YONET joined local police and state Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement officials in serving warrants to homes at 823 Stuart Ct., 1205 Ullivan Ct., 1701 and 1903 Vermont Ave., 106 19th St. and 15 Circle St.

YONET officials said that seven ounces of methamphetamine were found at 1701 Vermont Ave., and over three ounces of the drug along with more than $3,000 in cash and some stolen property were found at the Stuart Ct. house.

A total of 14 people were arrested on drug-related charges.

New blood in city fire department

In a brief ceremony last Tuesday, the West Sacramento Fire Department inducted nine new reserve firefighters into its ranks.

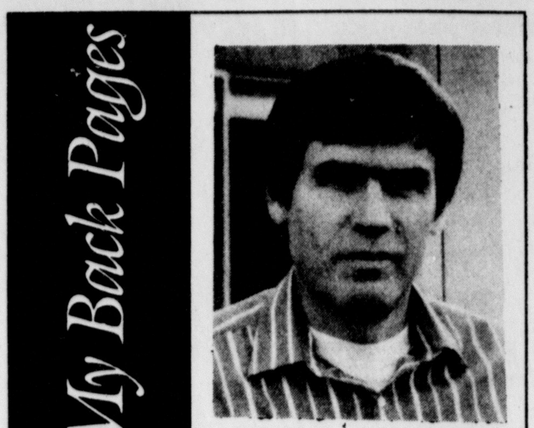
The reserves just finished an 8 1/2 month training course and are certified to respond to calls alongside the department's full-time firefighters.

The department hopes to round out its staff with 20 reserves.

Every parent's favorite time of the year approaches

EDITOR'S NOTE: Daryl is on vacation this week. The following is a favorite column of his which he wrote during back to school week a few years ago.



There are certain times of the year which most parents eagerly await. For some it's Christmas, when the house is colorfully decorated and the children can hardly wait to tear into their packages. For others, it's Halloween, when the kids look so cute in their little costumes, or Easter, when they seem so grown up in their very best clothes. Birthdays are always fun, too, but for this parent, the one day of the year which can never get here soon enough is back to school day!

Maybe it's just me, but this has been a particularly squirrelly summer and my kids (of which there are four) spent most of July and almost all of August bouncing off the walls and finding new and creative ways to drive me and their mother nuts. For example, this was the summer that my seventeen-year-old daughter, Carrie, decided to spend her Sunday mornings helping out at the Sacramento Zoo. Now, at first glance, that seems like the kind of quality activity any good parent would encourage their daughter to undertake. But last Sunday, as she prepared to drive off to the zoo, the last words out of her mouth were, "And by the way, Dad, I'll be working with the bears and lions today."

Now, on Sunday mornings, I usually try to relax in my favorite chair and slowly read the newspaper from one end to the other. Unfortunately, one simply cannot do that knowing his only daughter is interacting with a bunch of wild carnivores.

When she finally returned home and I had convinced myself that she was free of any fang or claw marks, I asked her how her day had gone.

"I had a great time," she assured me.

"Did you learn anything?"

"Dad," she explained with amazement, not quite using these words, "you really haven't seen animal droppings until you've seen grizzly bear droppings."

My sons have also gone out of their way this summer to make my life much more interesting than it needs to be. As I mentioned in an earlier column, my fourteen-year-old son, Ty, has taken to sneaking out of the house late at night and leaving a blanket dummy in his place; Paul, my eleven-year-old son, has started drawing his own anti-social and often blood-dripping comic strips; and my sweet little six-year-old, Kyle, has somehow learned a number of cuss words I don't even use.

So, for more weeks than I want to admit, I have been eagerly waiting to hand my children back over to the overworked and underpaid teachers of our local schools. Each year, almost miraculously, they somehow manage to get all four of them back on track and interested in activities which won't cut another year or two off my life.

There is, of course, a downside to back to school day. Among other things, the preparation alone can kill you. All the boys have, once again, grown at least two inches and although they don't really mind going off to school prepared for a flood, their mother does, and they all need new pants. They also need new footwear and I still can't seem to get it in my head that shoes (which only last about three months nowadays) no longer cost $9.99 a pair like they used to when I was a kid. They also need haircuts (especially Paul, now that Golden State Middle School has revised its dress code and he won't be able to wear the hat he lives under), book backpacks, pencils, paper, folders, and of course, underwear.

Anyway, when the morning of back to school day does finally arrive, you are still not completely out of the woods. Among other things, six people suddenly all need to use the very same bathroom at the very same time; you have to make sure everyone knows the new hiding place for the house key; you have to somehow come up with all kinds of weird combinations of nickels, dimes and quarters (which you don't have) to pay for milk and assorted lunches; for those who have decided to take a bag lunch, you have to referee the fight between who gets the Jell-O chocolate pudding and who get stuck with the fruit cup; and finally, you have to call your boss and explain you're going to be an hour late for work because it's the first day of school and your whole family is in chaos.

Is it all worth it? You bet it is! Anything to be able to utter those wonderful words - THEY'RE ALL BACK IN SCHOOL!

Police department promotes safe driving as school starts up from the West Sacramento Police Department

The West Sacramento Police Department is co-sponsoring, along with Governor Pete Wilson and the California State Automobile Association, the state's "Schools Open-Drive Carefully" campaign. The campaign will last from September 1-30, and a proclamation will be passed on Wednesday, September 14, at the city council meeting.

The "Schools Open-Drive Carefully" campaign is an effort to encourage all motorists to drive particularly safely during this period when a majority of California's schools are reopening. As you may already know, our schools in West Sacramento have reopened.

It is very important that all citizens take extra precautions to drive carefully and observe proper rules of the road and always buckle up no matter how far you are going. We also encourage you to talk to your children about proper traffic safety and it is extremely important to be a good role model for your children.

The Sports Insider

The 49ers open the NFL season as seven-point favorites on Monday Night Football against the Los Angeles Raiders.

The 49er secondary will have their hands full trying to stop Hostetler from hooking up with his speedy receivers. The Raiders use four wide receivers, with Alexander Wright (who owns the NFL's Fastest Man title) and Pro Bowl and AFC leading yardage receiver Tim Brown. How would you like to cover the other two, who have nicknames like the Rocket and the Jett?

The test will be on the 49ers' front four to put pressure on the QB, something the 49ers lacked last year. The 49ers will win the game, but it will be a close game: 49ers 28, Raiders 27.

In other NFL action, the defending champion Dallas Cowboys travel to Pittsburgh and are six-point favorites over the Steelers. The Cowboys should win the Eastern division. I pick the Green Bay Packers to win the Central Division and the 49ers to win the West.

The sleepers in the NFC are Buddy Ryan's Arizona Cardinals and look for Tampa Bay to win their share of games and make a run at the wild card. In the AFC, the Raiders will battle Denver for the Western title, but I think the Raiders will come out on top. In the Central division, cleveland will win and Mianmi should beat Buffalo for the Eastern crown.

Kansas City, Buffalo and Houston should end up battling for a playoff spot.

The Gold Miners (3-5) play on Friday, Sept. 2 against British Columbia (7-1) at Hornet Field at 7:30 p.m. The Gold Miners lost a heartbreaker last week 31-28 on a last-second field goal by Winnipeg.

The Sacramento Knights (14-12) could clinch a playoff berth on Thursday, Sept. 1, with a victory over the San Jose Grizzlies (12-14). The Knights' magic number is one, and the Knights need one more win or one more loss by San Jose to make the playoffs. The Knights close the regular season at home on Sunday against Dallas. The Knights beat the Carolina Vipers last Friday 10-4 before more than 9,000 fans.

Plenty of good seats available and the game starts at 7:30 p.m. The ticket prices are $6 to $8.50.

See ya next week!

Take a walk Sept. 10 to benefit seriously ill kids

Come join the fun at the Make-A-Wish Foundation's annual "Walk to Wishes" on Saturday, September 10. The walk will begin at 9 a.m. in Capitol Park, across from the Hyatt Regency, and winds its way through midtown back to Capitol Park.

For a minimum donation of $10, participants will receive a continental breakfast before the walk, a t-shirt, a BBQ picnic lunch and entrance to the carnival held in Capitol Park after the walk.

For more information, please call 448-WISH.

The Sacramento Make-A-Wish Foundation is a non-profit wish-granting charity dedicated to fulfilling the special wishes of children between the ages of 2 and 18 who are battling life-threatening illnesses.

The goal of Make-A-Wish is to create special memories of joy and laughter for wish children and their families. The entire family participates in the wish.

The Sacramento chapter of the Make-A-Wish Foundation was founded in 1983. It serves children living in Northern California.

The Sacramento Make-A-Wish Foundation has fulfilled more than 850 wishes of area children during the past 10 years. 1994 is a benchmark year for the Sacramento chapter as it prepares to grant its 1,000th wish.

The organization is governed by a 25-member board of directors and is supported by a network of 300 volunteers who work in wish granting, fund raising, and community outreach.

Wishes granted by the Sacramento Make-A-Wish Foundation would not be possible without the help of the community. Private donations come from individuals, corporate sponsors, community service organizations and in-kind donations of goods and services. Make-A-Wish relies entirely on this generous support for its funding.

Wishes granted are only limited by the imagination of the child. Past wishes include children meeting their favorite celebrity - President Clinton, country singers Reba McEntire and Billy Ray Cyrus, baseball player Will Clark, football superstar Joe Montana and actress Candace Cameron. Adventurous wish trips include destinations such as Hawaii, the Nootka Island Fishing Camp in British Columbia, the San Diego Zoo and the World Series. Always a favorite is a trip to Disneyland or Disney World.

Local music festival/parks benefit turns two years old

Congratulations and good luck to the folks in the parks and community services department, who hope to raise money for their department's community programs through a music festival this weekend.

The department has borne the brunt of recent budget cuts, since the other alternative for city officials was to cut police and fire services.

Their entrepreneurship is enviable.

The department also had some success with its first crack at a "celebrity server" night at a local restaurant, which also could turn into a profitable annual event.

Next time around, they might want to renegotiate a higher percentage of the proceeds though. The restaurant, after receiving free labor from its staff for the evening and increased patronage to boot, donated 10% of the night's gross proceeds to local charity.

That percentage could probably go up.

With a fake smoking-regulation proposition on the state ballot for November, the tobacco companies are well into their campaign to protect "smokers' rights" (read, "smokers' rights to fill public indoor air with noxious, dangerous fumes).

Despite some of this ad campaign, any attempt to clean up indoor air pollution in public places is not an attack on smokers. It is an attack on public smoking -- a habit which affects others.

There are plenty of legitimate points to argue in this debate, such as whether private establishments such as bars and clubs should be able to declare themselves as "havens" for smoking patrons.

But one issue is not debatable:

Anyone frequenting a truly public place or workplace should have the right not to breathe garbage.

Letters to the Editor

She says. . .

This isn't the first time Joseph Muse and I have traded political barbs. Maybe we should have a regular column like the movie "He Says, She Says." Any disparaging remark about Rush Limbaugh is always a sure way to push his buttons.

Any negative remark about Senator Kennedy is a sure way to push mine. Scandals aside, he has worked for 30 years to bring national health care to this nation. If he drinks too much, consider for a moment the torturous memories he must live with on a daily basis. He has seen not one but two beloved brothers die with their skulls blown to bits. People are sympathetic to veterans and others who suffer this kind of post traumatic agony, why can't we give the Senator from Massachusetts a break? I salute him.

Mr. Muse says I'm not a real Democrat if I don't support abortion. State Democratic leader Senator Roberti (like a multitude of Catholic Democrats) does not support abortion; that is the one problem Catholic hospitals have with the Clinton Health Care bill. Jerry Brown, while California Chairman of the Democratic party, called to remove abortion as a platform issue because it is a point of contention with so many members. The Feminists for Life in America group (primarily Democratic women) deem all life sacred. They oppose abortion along with the death penalty, euthanasia, chemical pollution, and Republican economic policies that undermine life saving social programs.

I have great sympathy for women faced with unwanted pregnancy. I certainly don't see abortion as a crime to be punished but I do strongly believe the emphasis should be on funding preventive education and birth control methods, free comprehensive maternity care, and liberalizing adoption procedures. So many women are unable to have babies and desperately want to be mothers. We should seek ways to make, not break, new families.

Last election day my dyed-in-the-wool Republican husband actually came in the front door waving a white handkerchief and wearing my son's football helmet; he knows watching the ballot returns on TV is a dangerous sport in our house. It is his special sense of humor that allows me to put up with his right wing nonsense. Plus his conservative sense of decorum and emotional restraint is not match for my no-holes-barred approach. I love winning every argument.

So, remember Mr. Muse, when pained by my letters from the left; it could be worse. Just ask the poor man who lives with this liberal.

Wastes

That move by Sacramento authorities to prevent "non-Sacramento County users" from utilizing any Sacramento waste disposal facilities are from Sacramento County. So while the action was obviously aimed at reducing West Sacramento's ability to handle its sewage and industrial waste and hence its ability to compete for having new big business locate here, West Sacramento can opt for one or more of the following actions: (1) Charge more for sewage/waste disposal - by volume, if possible - for those businesses creating the most waste and whose majority of "consumer-customers" are in Sacramento County; (2) Charge more/cause more to be charged for landfill in Yolo County when the waste is from Sacramento; (3) Keep a close eye on those businesses operating under a Conditional Use Permit and not allow continued use by those contributing too heavily to the industrial waste problem...or, if it is benefitting Sacramento too much, or a combination of the two.

It is unfortunate that we must start thinking in these terms, but the way we were treated this last time by state and federal authorities -- at the urging of Sacramento authorities -- that fine of $250,000 was quite steep, especially when the higher-ups turn the cheek the other way when all of that untreated sewage from Sacramento goes into the river during the heavy rain times...is that okay? If so, the future word to West Sacramento should be to undertreat or to just not treat sewage...that's more acceptable than to overtreat sewage, right?

It is ironic, too, that for decades we've had the Greyhound Bus maintenance yard on our side of the river, yet the vast majority of "consumer-customers" are from Sacramento; hence, such a yard should take up Sacramento's riverfront and its waste, etc. handled on the Sacramento side.

Let Sacramento dispose of its own pro-rata share of industrial waste.

Callous driver

This is to inform you of an incident that happened on the 12:18 bus out of Sacramento on this date. On Sundays there is only one bus every hour. At the first bus stop south of Park Blvd. on Jefferson Blvd., the bus driver picked up a 9-year-old little girl. Children ride for free in the summer. I was surprised when he asked her age. Then he asked her if she knew where she was going. She told him home but she did not know the name of the street that the bus stopped on. To my horror, and hers, he made her get off the bus. I asked the bus driver how he expected that little one to get home. She may have had someone waiting for her at the other end. He didn't know how long she had been waiting for him and there wouldn't be another bus for one hour (guess who the driver would be). Even if she didn't know where she was going he should never have abandoned her. He has a phone to help her out. He threatened to throw me off the bus for telling him he should not have left the little girl behind. He refused to give me his name and would not allow me to see the badge he was wearing. His most intelligent response was the raspberries - he stuck his tongue out and blew, not just once but again when I got off the bus.

Since the #41 goes no farther south than 15th Street, it took me 15-20 minutes to walk down to Stone Blvd. to get home and call the police department. I told them what had happened and that the little girl was starting to cry the last I saw of her. There are a lot of school children that will be depending on the bus this winter, in the rain and dark; it doesn't sound like we can depend on the buses to get them home. I feel the attitude this driver displayed (toward the child and me) shows he should not be driving a bus and definitely not working near human beings.

This is not the first incident like this. One of the other drivers, a few months ago, was telling how he handles difficult situations and proceeded to tell about the time he put a gentleman off the bus downtown. He had picked up the gentleman on the Yolo side with his groceries. On Sundays the bus only runs one way, so the gentleman had to ride into Sacramento and come back into Yolo before he could reach home. Now that trip would not have overlapped his original point of entry. Yolo bus has a rule that no one may stay on the bus at the end of J Street as it goes around to L Street. So the driver told the gentleman to get off the bus on J Street (Yolo also charges another fare on L Street, even though the people have paid their fare to get to a destination the bus hasn't even reached yet-double fare paid or no ride). The gentleman didn't speak English so could not understand why he should get off. The driver picked up his groceries and put them on the sidewalk. The gentleman followed. The driver neither cared how the man was going to get home or that he could not communicate, even knew where he was. All I could think of when I heard that, was how cruel that was to strand the gentleman. Thank God not all the bus drivers are like that,

Following the services a luncheon was served by the ladies in the oak grove near the church and several strangers partook of the hospitality of the hosts. The proceeds were devoted towards paying the debt of the Riverbank church.

FIREMEN'S CELEBRATION ON JULY FOURTH WAS A CREDIT TO THE BOYS OF WASHINGTON

A GREAT CROWD OF SACRAMENTO PEOPLE CROSSED THE RIVER TO VIEW THE WORK OF THE VOLUNTEERS.

The success of the celebration pulled off on July 4th by the Volunteer Firemen of Washington will be remembered for many years and hundreds of people from points outside the town who came to visit and view the sports left with a happy impression of the members of the department.

It is safe to say that not less than 1,000 people from Sacramento crossed the bridge to see the fun and it is a pleasure to say that nearly every resident of Washington, Riverbank and points along the river north and south remained at this side of the bridge to lend encouragement to the fire boys who so willingly gave their services for their entertainment.

A record was established in one of the events that is deserving of attention. The members of Hose Company No. 1 made a run of 350 feet to fire plugs, attached and laid 300 feet of hose, put on the water nozzle and had water pouring from it in 55 seconds.

The other events were enjoyable and created much enthusiasm and much amusement.

The most thrilling event of the day was the water fight which was staged at 3:45 p. m. Two companies of fifteen men each approached each other with a full force of water pouring from a 3-inch hose with a 1-inch nozzle. Endurance alone could win this fight and it was a wonder to watch the youngsters stand for a full head of water and try to advance under its blistering force. For 30 minutes they battled to get tangled irreparably, which permitted only a decision of the judges to call it a draw.

The other events and winners were as follows:

9:45—Baseball game—Hose Co. No. 1 won; score, 20 to 13; time, 2 hours and 10 minutes.

12:00—Married men's race, 100 yards—A. A. Dassonville, first; H. Armstrong, second.

2:00—Sack race for boys under 15 years, 60 yards—George Flint, first; Johnnie Enwright, second.

2:15—Girls' race, 18 years or under, 100 yards—Olga Caffaro, first; Lillie Lear, second.

2:30—Tug-of-war—Hose Co. No. 2 won; time, 6 minutes.

2:45—Married women's race, 60 yards—Mrs. H. Armstrong, first; Mrs. A. A. Dassonville, second.

3:15—Hose cart race for first water, run 350 feet to plug, lay 300 feet of hose and put on nozzle—Hose Co. No. 1 won; time, 55 seconds.

3:45—Water-battle between Hose Companies Nos. 1 and 2—After 30 minutes of desperate fighting decided a draw.

Judge J. D. Barry with Fire Chief Dave Barry acted as judges of the events. The time-keepers were Ray Peek and Tom White.

Moving pictures of the various events were taken by Photographer McCurry of Sacramento. They will be exhibited in the Empress Theatre commencing this evening and continuing until Tuesday.

The members of the Volunteer Fire Department will attend the theatre in a body next Sunday evening to see what kind of an appearance they make on the screen.

The business men of Washington who donated towards the success of the event were as follows:

C. E. Van Deren & Son	$ 5.00
J. N. Bennetts	3.00
J. Reuter	2.50
R. Derr	5.00
P. A. Fitzgerald	2.00

The donation given by the Washington Improvement Club was the surplus left after the Yolo Causeway expenses had been paid.

TAKEN SUDDENLY WITH HEART DISEASE

James H. Contell, a contractor of Sacramento, was taken suddenly ill last Saturday while on a fishing trip at Lake Washington and died before help reached him. Fishing in the shade of a tree he was seen to lie down, his companion and nephew believing that he was simply about to take a nap. The latter continued fishing until he thought it about time to go home and then approached Contell to wake him. To his surprise Contell was found to be dead.

During several months past Contell had not been in good health and was under the care of physicians but his death was not expected.

An inquest was held by Deputy Coroner Perkins of Yolo County and a verdict was rendered that death was due to dilation of the heart.

Contell's funeral was held last Monday at which Capitol Lodge, I. O. O. F., conducted the services.

'Cheaper' store faces two issues with planners

By Steve Marschke

The West Sacramento Planning Commission will take a look at plans for a new "Cheaper!" gas and grocery store in Southport during its 6:00 p.m. meeting on Thursday, Sept. 1.

The commission will meet at the city council chambers on the second floor of the World Trade Center building, 2101 Stone Blvd.

On the agenda will be two aspects of the planned development. The commission will be asked to approve a lot line adjustment for the three-acre site, located at the southern intersection of Linden Rd. and Jefferson Blvd. in the south part of the city, and to decide whether or not the facility will bring more traffic across the Jefferson Blvd. bridge.

The city general plan prohibits any new development in Southport which would increase traffic across the barge canal before a new bridge is built, and "Cheaper!" proponents have commissioned a study which shows that their store will not.

It will serve local residents, they argue, and will thus tend to keep Southport residents from making as many trips to the north part of the city.

Members of the Southport Homeowners Association have already voiced their concerns about the store in a letter to the planning department.

"Basically, we really don't think it's possible to support an 8,000 square foot establishment without bringing traffic across the Southport bridge," said Dan Amegin, president of the association.

Amegin also voiced concern that including diesel fuel pumps at the store would bring additional truck traffic into the area, and that the store might attract crime.

"If they're willing to mitigate all the concerns here in an earnest and forthright manner, and if their traffic study is credible, then they could fit in," he said.

The city staff report said planners have "some concerns" with that traffic report, but that they tended to agree that the proposed store would not increase traffic across the bridge.

Armed robber takes deposit money at bank

■ Undisclosed amount of money taken in daylight robbery in parking lot

By Steve Marschke

A woman carrying a bank deposit bag was accosted and robbed by a man carrying a handgun Monday morning in the parking lot of the First Northern Bank on Harbor Blvd.

The incident occurred at about 10:30 a.m., according to Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento police department. The woman was left "shaken" but uninjured from the incident.

"A lady went in to make a deposit," Moore said. "Before she could deposit it, a guy pulled a gun."

The suspect is described as a black male in his late twenties, with a goatee and moustache, who fled in a white vehicle. The victim stated that the man was armed with a handgun.

Moore said that he was not sure whether the woman was making a deposit for herself or for a business. He declined to say how much money was taken in the robbery.

Police pick up spent cartridges, suspect

Police recovered 11 spent cartridges from the vicinity of a drive-by shooting which occurred last Wednesday evening near the 2500-block of West Capitol Ave.

"There was a person riding a bicycle nearby," said Lt. Ron Moore of the West Sacramento Police Dept., "but no one was injured and nothing that we know of was hit."

Suspect John Wesley Jones, 27, a Sacramento resident who had been staying in West Sacramento, was arrested for discharging a firearm in a dangerous manner.

Moore said police did not know if the shooter had targetted the bicyclist or someone or something else, or had merely been discharging a weapon into the air.

Biotech giant looking at West Sacto property

The Business Journal has reported that biotechnology giant Genentech of South San Francisco is considering West Sacramento's Riverside Center business Centre (near I-80 and Reed Ave.) as a site for its new $150 million headquarters.

But the report also stated that the company is favoring a 100-acre parcel in Vacaville for the new location, because of its employees' current homes and the existence of a larger work force.

One of the main reasons Genentech is seeking to move from its South San Francisco site is that it would like to escape the more earthquake-prone environs of the San Francisco area.

The West Sacramento site is owned by the Koll Company and already houses a new laboratory facility built by Enseco Inc.

County supervisor recovering from accident, broken leg

George DeMars, the long-time county supervisor who represents residents in parts of West Sacramento's Broderick and Bryte areas as well as Woodland, is recovering from a broken leg sustained in a backyard accident.

DeMars "finds a way to get around" despite the injury, said a family member Tuesday, and is expected to fully recover in about six weeks.

DeMars will be replaced on the Yolo Board of Supervisors in January by Woodland resident Tom Stallard.

Stallard defeated DeMars in the June, 1994 primary.

Sidewalk art

This Labor Day weekend will bring to Sacramento the fourth annual Chalk it up to Sacramento sidewalk painting festival. The highlight of the event will be our team of volunteer artists who will be creating chalk art masterpieces directly on the sidewalk pavement. The artists will work on their pieces throughout the three-day weekend, and the public is invited to watch. If the artistic inspiration is too contagious, there will be free arts and crafts activities.and relax in beautiful, shaded Fremont Park.

For those budding artists in the community who would like to do their own chalk drawings, a "community square" will be offered, where they can try the chalk-on-pavement medium free of charge. For a $10 donation, the public will be able to purchase a "concrete canvas" and a box of chalk pastels to create their own sidewalk masterpiece.

Henriette Doglietto will be exhibiting a visual journey of "inward" places through her drawings, paintings and other media at the Arthur Turner Library gallery, 1212 Merkley Ave., between August 1 and September 1.

but the bad ones are still there.

What can be done about this total disrespect and hatefulness? Something has to be done. The public, especially the children, must be informed of what alternatives they have when this happens. I seldom have enough for a cab and children can't carry that much money. Even if they have just enough to call home, many times no vehicle is available and the child, like today, wouldn't even be able to take the next bus because that monster would be the same driver.

I am writing in the hopes that this matter will be taken care of and the driver will be fired for abandoning the little girl, and see to it this never happens again - adult or child!

Senior Service Line

SCAMS UPDATED: As readers of this column know, I try to keep you advised of the various scams that are perpetrated against seniors. Although some may differ with me, I consider these con artists as the worst kind of thieves who deserve nothing less than to be put in jail for many years. They not only take money, they also scar the soul. It isn't easy to recover from an experience in which your trust in another human being is brutally betrayed.

The most recent scam report comes from New York State where, according to the Associated Press, the Attorney General is cracking down on a telemarketer accused of swindling elderly people with promises of cars, washing machines, and other sweepstakes prizes.

The scheme involves trolling for victims nationwide. When they click in to a vulnerable senior, they tell that person that she or he has won a valuable sweepstakes prize, and only needs to buy something for at least $500 to claim it.

Some victims have sent in thousands of dollars to claim these "valuable" prizes. One 89-year-old man parted with $1,900 and received a few bottles of cheap perfume in return. Another woman bought $980 worth of goods to claim her $10,000 prize, and got a few letter openers.

These companies use a "sucker list" of victims, many of whom are scammed many times over by various scheme-masters or by the same company using different names.

A typical spiel consists of the company "reminding" their victim that they'd entered a contest some time before. Or, they're told, maybe someone entered for them. In any event, they were now "definitely" winners of a car, jewelry, $5,000 in cash, an expensive appliance, etc. To claim the prize, the victim agrees to buy a "guaranteed" product from the company. Often the product that's sent is a cheap geegaw, or nothing.

If you believe you may have been scammed, alert your state's Attorney General immediately. The crook you help stop now won't be back to hook you again later.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South

Pass	Pass	Dble

Opening lead — nine of hearts.

Brilliance is not always rewarded. For example, take this deal played in the 1979 World Championship in the match between Taiwan and the United States.

The U.S. North-South pair at the first table got to four spades doubled as shown and West, Che-Hung Kuo, made the remarkable opening lead of the nine of hearts! After East, Patrick Huang, took the trick with the queen, he recognized that the purpose of his partner's underlead of the ace of hearts was to get a ruff.

Accordingly, Huang returned the deuce of diamonds. (West's lead of an unnecessarily high heart — a suit-preference signal — asked for the return of the higher-ranking of the two remaining side suits.) West ruffed the diamond and this time led the seven of clubs! (East's return of his lowest diamond requested a club lead.— West's second underlead of an ace was likewise successful. East won the club with the queen, led another diamond, and West ruffed to put the contract down one.

But, alas, this brilliant defense by the Taiwanese East-West pair was more than offset by what occurred at the second table, where the U.S. East-West pair wound up playing at five hearts doubled. Ordinarily, West would have gone down one, losing three spade tricks. But luckily for declarer, North's singleton spade was the ace, which he led, and that was the only trick scored by the defenders.

So the outcome was that the American East-West pair at the second table made five hearts doubled with an overtrick for a score of 1,050 points. This was 950 points more than the Taiwanese East-West pair at the first table had scored with their extraordinary defense, providing ample proof that brilliance is not always adequately rewarded.
